Nearly a menth ago the Comptroller of Chicago sent to Dunono, Sherman & Co. $100,000 to pay the principal, and a consider-able sum besides this to pay the interest on the city debt held in New York. The opinion of the Law Department has been asked by Comptroller Huyes as to whether the city must stand the loss. The opinion of the Department is that inasmuch as the money was placed in Duccan. Sherman & Co.'s hands nearly thirty days ago. that the bolders of the city bonds bud time enough to be notified of the fact, and so the bundholders must be held liable as if the amount was their own deposit with the firm Still, it may be doubtful whether those who had not been made aware of this and draw the amount due will be responsible and the city not. In view of this the Comptroller will call the attention of the Conneil to the matter, asking them to decide whether he shall consider the city or the bondholders the losers.

They had been friends, such as we see Of formed twist high and low degree: Till Margan t's pride had mapped the chain And now, assured in place and power, She coldly marked the lowly flower. Whose worth had won the humble swain,

In gilded pump, fair Margaret passed With her provid bridegroom home at last To the tall rastle on the hill: While children rifled glen and wood For while wer sweets to strewthe road Which Eva took with Farmer Will."

Each filled ber place. The lordly towers Stood grand unid parterres of flowers. Where courtly guests, admiring, moved; While, in ste vines hid, muck and line, The cottage, like a white rase, shone Where hearts contented lived and loved.

The lady of the towers was known In splendid throngs, and proudly slione As a rare gets in Fushion's crown: While the meek mistress of the cot. In her own comfort, an'er forgot The suffering poor in but and town

Another spring, in Intler years, Smiled softly through its April tears On the old church upon the green, Yet wept neain two graves to see Fresh-heaped upon the churchyard lea. O'er Margaret and Evaluen.

All bright as brief their lives had been Before death's angel drew them in And bound them in his golden sheaves, So, in the dim and eilent tomb, The life of each its lesson leaves,

For Maggaret's tomb stands all apart. A marvel of the sculptor's art. The stranger's ready praise to claim, Nor cause a. il ought of beauty laid Beneath the haughty column's shade, Except to note the rank and name: While morn and eve the children press

The neighbouring mound with flowers to dress, Which willing hands keen ever groen ; And sight, like zephyrs, marmer oft, And tours bedew the grames soft. That fold the breast of Evaloca.

FOUND OUT. -A cortain deacon, who was h zerlous advocate of the cause of temperance, employed a carpenter to make some alterations in his parlour. In repairing a corner near the fireplace, it was found necessary to remove the wainscot, when some things were brought to light which astonished the workman morvollously. A brace of decauters, sundry bottles-all containing "something to take -and a pitcher and tumblers were closely reposing there in song quarters. The joiner ran to the proprietor with the intelligence. Well, I declare i" exclaimed the deacon; "that is curious, sure enough! It must have been old Captain Bunce that left those things there when he occupied the premises thirty years since." TRAVELLING, PAST AND PRESENT. In days lang syne, when those who had the means and inclination were wont to visit foreign lands, the knowledge necessary in search for bric.a-bran was confined to a limited circle. Moreover, the taste was by no means evinced as it is by very many in the present day. Thus, pictures were purchased at high prices, and brought home as Murillos or Raphaels, Rubens or Titians, solely because they were purchased in Italy or Spain by those who had probably much more money time taste or discrimation; at all events little knowledge of pure art, or that refined and correct eye, granted by God and nurtured by practice, which could alone guide them. It is almost inconceivable what an amount of rubbish thus found its way to the rural homes OHINA AND JAPAN MARINE INSU of England and to the picture-marts of the Metropolis.
